

Displaying images on the forum

There are two methods to show images and this works with any image from any website - unless it is a Flash image. However, if you want to use your own photos, you will need to upload them to the internet first.

You can either save them into our own photogallery accessed from the site links, or you can upload to the specialised photo sites. One of the popular ones is Photobucket at this address:-

<http://photobucket.com/>

First method.

Allows people to click a link to view the image

Right click on your image you want to display and select "Copy Image Address" or similar

Go to the forum, create your message and then paste into the message the image address you just copied

That will leave a link to the picture for people to click in your message

Second Method

To have an image show permanently on the page. For this exercise I have copied the address of the banner at the top of the forum

In the message edit window click the 4th icon image from the left immediately above the smiley icons and you will get the following at the end of your message

Now paste the image address but this time between the middle two brackets

Now when you post your message the image will appear on page like this
